

ARCHITECTURAL DIGEST

REAL ESTATE

This Lovely Brick Home Just Outside New York City Is on the Market

Built in 1937, this home recently underwent a three-year renovation

Posted November 3, 2015

This beautiful Colonial is for sale in a charming neighborhood only 30 minutes outside New York City.

TEXT BY JENNIFER TZESES

PHOTOGRAPHY BY DJK RESIDENTIAL

Stats

4 Bedrooms

3.5 Baths

3,500 sq. ft.

$2.1 million

Randolph Evans, the architect of Bronxville Village Hall and Brooklyn College, designed this classic brick Colonial as his private residence in 1937. The current owner spent three years renovating the property, which is located in Bronxville, just 30 minutes north of New York City.

The sunroom is flooded with natural light.

Situated on a quiet treelined street, the handsome property features a brick-walled courtyard entry with boxwoods and a rose garden, a living room, a sunroom, a dining room, a family room, and a newly expanded eat-in kitchen. Behind the residence is a slate terrace with a brick fireplace and several seating areas.

The terrace provides ample outdoor entertaining space.

Contact: DJK Residential, 212-367-0479; djkrresidential.com